—Congressman Woodburn will, in a few days visit T. B. Rickey's Antelope Valley ranch on a fishing expedition to the head-waters of the Walker River, where brook trout abound. Rickey says the statesman must ride the meanest mule on the ranch or "it don't go." The latter claims that he can ride anything that wears hair. Because Cassidy bucked him off the track once, it is no reason why any four legged critter can perform the same office for him.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

ALL SORTS.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Stewart left for the Lake yesterday.

—Miss Hannah Barrett has been appointed Postmistress of Empire.

—A real estate dealer in Salt Lake heads his advertisement, "Dirt for Sale."

—Whispers of another stock deal are in the air. Hope the boom will not be Frankled this time.

—Tony Kramer, pressman of the State Printing Office went below last evening to be gone about a week.

—For Sale.—A large roomy residence in the Western part of the city. Finelocation. Apply at this office.

—When a Salt Lake Judge sentenced Hoff, the murderer, for the fourth time, some boy in the audience called out "chestnut."

—Sacramento has another sensation. Miss Mattie Allen shot and killed James Patterson, a young man who had outraged her, and then committed suicide.

—Dr. Prentice, who has done a very large and successful business in Reno and Virginia City, at the request of many suffering people in this State, has consented to remain at the Lake House, Reno, until July 24th.

—The Amateur Club of Carson have accepted the challenge of the Virginia club to put up $300 with a chance to make it $500 if the Virginia club want it that way. The game will come off next Sunday in this city.

—It is a misfit business man who makes a practice of sponging writing paper and envelopes in a saloon where he never spends a cent. The well-regulated merchant considers a neatly printed personal letter-head an absolute necessity.

—Some people have taken it upon themselves to exterminate the curs which infest this town, and have laid poisoned meat about the streets for this purpose. It would be a blessing to get rid of these worthless canines, but the course adopted endangers the lives of chickens and valuable dogs. This was unfortunately shown yesterday morning by the death, by poisoning, of a highly valued dog brought up from San Francisco by Senator Stewart's grandsons. It was the property of the Senator's daughter, Mrs. Hooker.

Too Near Home.

In a short time work will be resumed on the Consolidated Stevedore and Minnehaha mine in Silver Glance district, near the Mountain House. It is said that W. H. Armstrong, Superintendent of the Brunswick mill, will resume work on the adjoining mine, where a five stamp mill will be erected and everything is in order for comprehensive operations. But the district is too handy to Carson to be appreciated. If it were in some inaccessible region, involving a sure death proposition, prospectors would flock to it.

A number of Carsonites have worked there during the past few years, in a sort of jerky way, as a stuttering Chinaman works a vegetable patch, with about the same practical results. The successful development of Silver Glance and Patterson Districts, means business for our local merchants, who should offer prospectors every reasonable encouragement.

Sewing Boiler Iron.

Andy Waters, a well known mechanic at the railroad shops, is perfecting plans for a machine which he claims will sew boiler iron as quickly and neatly as the ordinary Singer tacks the pieces of cloth together, thus doing away with the tedious process of riveting, now in use. The thread will be steel wire a quarter or three eighths in diameter, drawn to a welding heat as it passes through a small blast furnace to the needle of the machine, which will make a lock stitch, that when hammered flat on cloth sides, calks a seam and makes it absolutely steam tight. The inventor claims that with an assistant he can do more boiler work in one day than a dozen men now accomplish by the present method of riveting, and do it better. It is a ponderous proposition and if successful will be of immense value.

MRS. LANGTRY.

Her Passage Through Carson Yesterday.

When the late train arrived yesterday morning there was of course a large crowd at the depot to see her. Her Boudoir car which is 63 feet long and cost about $1,000 a foot, was side tracked at the depot as its size prevented it from going through the tunnels on the V. & T.

After the car stopped, Mrs. Langtry stepped out on the rear platform a moment and taking a cursory glance of the town, perhaps with the idea of purchasing a corner lot or so, retired to the inner precincts of the car, while her bald headed chief cook came out and aired himself. Her agent made every effort to have the V. & T. take the car to Virginia but it was impossible.

It was then decided to take the Lily to the Comstock in a four in hand and Raycraft sent down his four best horses to the car. At half past one the beauty left her car and crossing the short bridge over the V. & T. ditch stepped aboard while Raycraft the younger blushed the color of the rose.

When the Lily crossed the foot bridge she was obliged to thread her way between a mob of Carson gamins who had taken up their position at a point where they had her flanked in on all sides. Some of them were in the shade of the store house and some with pants rolled up, were clear to their knees in water.

They had waited there over two hours to get a chance to see Langtry.

This homage to beauty was graciously acknowledged by the actress with a smile, which came out from under her lilac veil in a style that made each individual youngster think that it was his especial property.

Mrs. Langtry was dressed in a tight-fitting blue waist and striped dress of some light material, and the usual gloves, hat, etc. It was not at all showy, but it drew this remark from one of the gamins:

"Fits her like the paper on the wall; don't it?"

In a few moments Mrs. Langtry, her agent and maid were whirling through Main street, attracting the attention of everybody along the line.

Mrs. Langtry's car, now lying at the depot, was visited during the afternoon by a good many ladies, who seemed disappointed to find that it was only held by the cook. It is a fairy palace, upon which art, money and upholstery has been lavished to a most extravagant degree. Every improvement and convenience is there, and Mrs. Langtry eats and sleeps there. It is her home on wheels, so to speak, and a more luxurious palace does not roll on iron rails, and one of the parties in charge assured the reporter that "Devil of a bed bug has ever been found inside of it."

Mrs. Langtry never sleeps at a hotel. She cut hotels ever since three years ago, when a St. Louis paper printed what purported to be a diagram of her room and Gebhardt's, showing the proximity of each. There was no truth in the article, and her name has never been seen on a hotel register since that day.

After the Virginia performance Mrs. Langtry was driven back to this city.

Up to yesterday noon $1,000 had been paid into the Virginia box office, and the take of seats in this city is the largest ever known here. She will appear in Pygmalion and Galatea tonight.

The Coercion Bill Becomes a Law.

The members of the House of Commons went formally into a body to the House of Lords yesterday afternoon, where royal assent was given to the Irish Crimes Act Amendment bill, and it was thus made a law of the realm.

—Ex-Governor Adams has returned from White Pine county. Not long ago some parties there killed some of his cattle, and he will prosecute them to the full extent. The APPEAL hopes to see him land every one of the scalawags in jail.

—Kirman & Rickey shipped 133 head of beef cattle yesterday.

BLAINE'S CHANCES.

Senator Jones Thinks that He will be Nominated on the First Ballot.

A few days ago Senator John P. Jones, of Nevada, passed through on his way to San Francisco. He was in the best of spirits, and as he talked with a Gazette reporter he became enthusiastically loquacious over the possibilities of the Republican party in 1888.

"Why," he said to the reporter, "there is no doubt at all in my mind as to the results of the next Presidential election. The Republican party has lost no prestige by the temporary management of the affairs of the General Government by the Democracy." In other words, he intimated that the change had been largely instrumental in bringing together the conflicting elements of the party.

"What do you think of Mr. Blaine's chances for a renomination?"

"Mr. Blaine," he answered quickly, "is more popular today than he was in 1884. His chances for renomination are excellent. The tongue of slander has worn itself out in its endeavor to blast his character. He has gone on unheeding the venom it tried to poison him with. They who were his friends in 1884 are more vociferous in their declarations for him than ever before. The Irish vote he received will be strengthened by a larger percentage in 1888, and the influence of the Mugwumps be considerably lessened. In fact, I have no doubt whatever but that he will be nominated on the first ballot, and as to his election you have only to spend a little time among the leading politicians and public men of New York and other Eastern cities to learn all that is desirable about the great dissatisfaction existing among them over the distribution of patronage by the present Administration."

The Cramer Case Revived.

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—Interest in the fate of Jennie Cramer, whose dead body was found at Sabine Rock some years ago, has been revived in a sensational way, and the story leads the friends of the Malley brothers, who were charged with her murder, to speak of them as martyrs of circumstantial evidence. The story is, that Albert Fitzroy who died in Holyoke, Mass., a few days ago, stated on his deathbed that Jennie Cramer committed suicide. He left home a week before Jennie Cramer was found floating in the surf, presumably to go to New York. Instead of going to New York he met a lady friend at the Holyoke depot and together they went to Sabine Rock, where he remained, and, as he states on his deathbed, witnessed with his companion, Jennie Cramer commit suicide. He attended the latter part of the trial of the Malley boys, ready, if they were found guilty, to get up and tell his story, which of course, would have cleared them beyond a doubt. As it was they were let go and Fitzroy went back to Holyoke.

The Coming Circus.

There is but one big successful circus on the road at the present time, and that is John Robinson's all wool, three ply combination, which advertises in another column.

It has tigers with natural stripes, and a genuine jabberwock that sweats blood.

When it comes rolling along the corridors of time the lesser circuses climb into a hole.

It is a stupendous aggregation, and paws the sand in its immensity.

It shows everything in the tent that the accurate artist depicts on the bills. If you see a picture of an elephant standing on one tail you can bet in an elevated manner that the elephant can stand on his tail for two hours, and never wink.

This circus began in a small way, with a few hundred animals and not more than a square mile of canvas, and reached its present dazzle-fizzle of magnificence and wealth by advertising only in the best papers along the route.

It will snort here with a big band on the 25th.
